Jeff O'Donnell

Jeff is a software and database engineer with over 40 years of successful private-sector experience. Since graduating from the University of Pittsburgh, he has worked for and with great companies like Rockwell International, Westinghouse Electric Nuclear, U.S. Steel, Mellon Bank, General Defense, the Penn State Applied Research Laboratory, and Concurrent Technologies. More recently, he has owned and operated numerous software development, consulting, and security companies. Currently, he serves as Chief Technical Officer of the Hughes Technology Group. Jeff has spent the last year using his data analytics and software development skills to perform research on U.S. elections, particularly the 2020 General election. He currently resides in Central Florida with his wife Nancy and their six dogs.

Contact Jeff at TheLoneRaccoon@Protonmail.com.