

OPEN LETTER TO SCOTT ADAMS AND ALL OTHERS WONDERING WHY “WE” KNEW ABOUT THE VACCINES

By Jeff O’Donnell – The “Lone Raccoon of the Apocalypse”

February 1, 2023

Dilbert creator Scott Adams and others have been posting a lot lately in wonderment over how some “knew” the vaccines were dangerous, with a strong implication that we somehow kept this knowledge from the rest of the people.

The implication is pure hogwash. I started posting warnings on my Facebook account in spring of 2021, for which I eventually had the account banned. Many others did as well, and if you did not see them, that is not for lack of trying. The corrupt media in this country put a full court press on against any anti-Covid vaccination information from the start, and you can see that it continues to this day.

As to how “we” knew, it is really rather simple. We already distrusted the media and the pharmaceutical companies, so we immediately started looking for information in other countries where the media suppression occurs more slowly. As an example, we saw reports from doctors coming out of South Korea and some other countries that HCQ was providing impressive results against Covid. For me, this was even before President Trump brought up the drug. Likewise, warnings that excessive ventilation of seriously ill Covid patients was actually killing them were available from other countries very early on. All of this information was immediately censored by the media and the parts of our government who protect “big pharma”.

We all saw a huge uptick in reported adverse effects to the vaccines from other counties very early on. When these adverse effects began creeping into the VAERS system, it was confirmation. We saw reports from researchers concerned that the vaccines were not so much a vaccine but untested gene therapy. We saw reports from medical professionals around the world finding spike proteins in patients' organs. We saw the uptick in conditions linked to abnormal blood clotting.

Of course, if all your "scientific" data comes from CNN, MSNBC, Facebook, or Twitter, you never knew any of this. All of our combined shouting had no chance of drowning out the propaganda, but shout we did.

We made the rational decision based upon the uncensored science. Instead of becoming lab rats for a group of megalomaniacs, we took our chances against a disease with an over 99% survival rate.

I was 59 when the virus appeared. This was in the age range where we were told to be more concerned. I have a couple "co-morbidities" as well. Still, I weighed the science being put out from both side of the argument and made the decision I felt gave me the best chance of survival. So did millions of others. It's called freedom.

I caught Covid a couple months ago on a trip to Colorado. Already on a regimen of Ivermectin, I had rather mild symptoms. Early on, my temperature began to spike, so I followed the Zelenko protocol and added HCQ. Four hours after taking my first dose, my fever broke and except for being dead tired for a week that ended all other symptoms.

I may catch it again. It might catch me at the wrong time and I might become seriously ill. If that happens, it will be because of MY informed choices, and not a tyrannical government mandate. I am fine with that.

So please don't try to blame those who did the research and tried to sound the alarm for what is to come from the vaccine. This is as patently ridiculous as when they tried to shame us into accepting the vaccine to somehow protect the vaccinated. Good people are working on therapies to undo or at least mitigate the damage done by the vaccine, and it is my hope that they have great success. I have close family who gave in to the narrative and were vaccinated, so I have a huge stake in all of this, but I care about you who are reading this almost as much.
